NEWS

FROM THE T.S.A.

Today (April 23rd) the Tasmanian Soccer Association welcome the South Australian Soccer League Squad and their officials.

To their President, Ian Gossland, Vice President Bill Bailey and Secretary Alex Cichanowski a warm welcome and everyone trusts you will enjoy your visit to "Tassie". The T.S.A. also hope your squad enjoy their two matches and that this can become the first of regular visits between the two States.

To the players representing the T.S.A. the Committee thank you and your clubs for the co-operation that has enabled a squad to be selected in the middle of a congested programme of matches. It is through this support that visits from Interstate teams can be made and thus assist in the general promotion of our code.
Other matches scheduled to date include two against the Northern State League plus a match against the Australian Institute of Sport.
The effort of all concerned is appreciated and every effort will be made to attract other Interstate visitors.

CLUB NEWS

JUVENTUS (a regular contributor) -
The loyalty of Juventus-Pioneer supporters is nothing short of wonderful.
Many of them attend three or four matches at weekends ranging from games for the girls team, the reserves, the thirds and of course, the Cadbury League matches. Several of them also help the Under 13 - 14 - 15 & 17 teams who are all showing tremendous early season form.
It is this kind of supporter participation that makes a club strong and helps keep soccer popular.
Well done supporters.

Senior player Ronnie Defelice is very much on the short side of being a giant in build. But last week he was a giant of courage, determination and sheer juggernaut prowess against Metro. The way he physically won against bigger men, coupled with some of the best crosses since the days of traditional wingers, had much to do with the Juventus victory.
Last Sunday against University Ronnie had another triumphant match with a hat-trick of goals. One of them curled in beautifully from his corner kick.

REFEREE'S VIEWPOINT

In July 1967 the International F.A. Board changed Law 12 (n). Before this time a player who had not been previously cautioned during a game could be sent off under one category only and that was violent conduct, which was defined to include serious foul play, foul or abusive language. The International F.A. Board has since, however, re-worded Law 12(n) so that a Referee can now send off a player not only for violent conduct, but also for serious foul play, foul language or abusive language. There are now four (instead of one) separate categories in Law 12 under which a player, not previously cautioned during the game, can sent off.

The player who is sent off after a striking offence is no longer sent off for violent conduct irrespective of who he struck. He is sent off for serious foul play if the striking offence was against an opponent and for violent conduct in all other cases of striking. The same applies to kicking offences. Another example of violent conduct is kicking or attempting to kick a Referee. Even holding the Referee by the hair or throat, pushing him against a goalpost, charging him or tripping him can be considered serious enough to send him off for violent conduct.

The International Board in 1981 decreed that spitting at an opponent would be categorised as serious foul play, and if so a direct free kick would be awarded, or a penalty kick if committed inside the penalty area, in addition to the offending player being sent from the field of play for SERIOUS FOUL PLAY. Spitting at anyone other than an opponent remains as VIOLENT CONDUCT for which an indirect free kick is awarded.

This series will be continued in the next SOCCER '83 NEWS.

FIRST AID BURNS

Burns are caused by dry heat such as fire or hot metal or by moist heat, (steam or boiling water). For young children, especially infants under one year old, small burns can be dangerous. Burns cause damage and pain by overheating the surface of the body.

1. If casualty's clothing is on fire, restrain, pull to the floor and wrap in a rug, blanket or coat to extinguish the flames. Remove any clothing or jewellery which is tight or may become so if the affected area swells. Do not remove any clothing stuck to the skin.

2. Cool the burnt parts under running cold water for at least ten minutes. Heat from the burn will continue to spread both on and under the skin causing pain and damage, even after the source of the heat is removed. Cooling the burnt area reduces the pain and limits the skin damage, if it is done for long enough. Do not put ointment or creams on to burnt areas.

3. Make the casualty comfortable, but do not move if the burn is extensive.

4. Prevent infection by not handling the burnt area. Do not touch or prick any blisters.

5. If the burns are extensive or deep, or the victim is a young child, contact your Doctor.
